

the Ohio Soybean Council Foundation is offering

SCHOLARSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

four scholarships each up to $3000

for undergrad students majoring in biology, molecular biology, biochemistry, bioengineering, biotechnology, bioenergy, biofuels, food science, agricultural communications, agricultural business, any of the agriculture disciplines, or related fields and planning a career focused with an application to agriculture.

one scholarship up to $5000

for an undergrad student pursuing a major that will lead to future innovations in biobased materials and their commercialization.

two scholarships each up to $5000

for graduate students conducting research in bioproducts, bio-based materials, bioengineering, biopolymers or a related field.

APPLY BY 15 JANUARY 2010

SOYOHIO.ORG

Ohio Soybean Council
Foundation

Figure 1.A: Actual human beings who won Ohio Soybean Council Foundation scholarships in the 2009–2010 school year: Julia Faeth, Chemical Engineering major at the University of Dayton; Neelakandan Chandrasekaran, a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Akron, majoring in Polymer Engineering; Alexander Johnson, Ag Business major at Ohio State University; Kara Riggs, Plant Health Management major at Ohio State University; Jonathan Schaeffer, Ag Business major at Wilmington College; Abby Snyder (not pictured), Food Science major at Ohio State University